Motivation Letter

Ahmed Elsayed Mohamed Mayalou · Master's in International Business and Entrepreneurship, Year I · Romanian-American University

Application: Erasmus+ Blended Intensive Programme – Global Management Game, HU University of Applied Sciences Utrecht (18–22 January 2027)

Back-up option: Global Management Simulation – Marketing in Action (25–29 January 2027)

Dear Erasmus+ Selection Committee,

I am applying for the Blended Intensive Programme Global Management Game at HU University of Applied Sciences Utrecht, because it offers something I cannot get from a classroom: running a company in an international team, under pressure, and seeing the results of my decisions round after round.

I am a full-time Master's student in International Business and Entrepreneurship at the Romanian-American University. My first degree is in engineering, which taught me to analyse problems and work with data. The Master's added the business side. I also run my own digital business, so I already know that good decisions need numbers, speed and a clear message to the customer. What I still lack is structured practice in managing a company in a competitive, international setting, and this programme provides exactly that.

The programme's format also connects with a topic I have studied on my own through online courses: gamification. Game mechanics such as clear goals, competition and instant feedback can strongly increase motivation and performance. The programme is not a course on gamification, but its business simulation, with team rounds and measurable results, lets me experience these mechanics from the inside. The sales pitch training and the intercultural workshop are equally valuable to me: pitching convincingly is central to entrepreneurship, and working with students from several countries is essential for my goal of building a career in an international company.

I will bring to the team my analytical thinking, practical experience as an entrepreneur and a strong willingness to collaborate. After the programme, I will apply what I learn in my own business and share the experience with other RAU students.

Thank you for considering my application. If the Global Management Game is not available, I would also be glad to take part in Global Management Simulation – Marketing in Action.

Kind regards,

Ahmed Elsayed Mohamed Mayalou
Master's in International Business and Entrepreneurship, Year I
Romanian-American University